To enhance women's involvement in the nuclear field, strengthen and sustain networks for women in nuclear, and build capacity for young women in nuclear sciences.

Objectives

1.
Build strategic alliances to advance women's career growth and leadership opportunities across the nuclear sector.

2.
Cultivate inclusive professional environments and robust mentorship networks to support women at all career stages.

3.
Deliver targeted training and development initiatives to empower the next generation of women in nuclear science.

Vice President
Steering Committee

What inspires you to be part of WiN Global?

I am inspired by WiN Global's vision to transform the nuclear sector through women's leadership. I aim to actively contribute by expanding access to opportunities, strengthening international collaboration, and driving impactful initiatives that empower women to lead, innovate, influence policy, and shape the future of nuclear science worldwide.

Professional Profile

Expertise area: International Cooperation in Nuclear Science and Technology, Radiopharmacy and Programme Management.

Amal has been a Program Management Officer in the Division for Africa at the IAEA since 2017. Bringing more than 25 years of experience in nuclear science, international cooperation, and program management, she has developed deep insight into the role of women in the nuclear field. Since 2022, she has been the Liaison Officer between WiN Global and the IAEA, and a WiN Global Executive Committee member.
